CELEBRATING KING'S LYNN'S MARITIME HISTORY!

In the 13th century, King's Lynn was the third most important port in England and part of the Hanseatic League. Today, the town still has an active port and retains the last remaining Hanseatic warehouse in England, built in 1475.

The Port of Kings Lynn handles a wide range of commodities including cereals and pulses, animal feed, fertilisers, timber, bulk liquid products and steel.

In 2005, King's Lynn was the first UK town to join The Hanse, a partnership of over 190 towns and cities across Northern Europe which were originally part of the medieval Hanseatic League. With the Hanse Festival, King's Lynn aims to help keep alive the spirit of the League, cultivating traditions and encouraging a vibrant exchange between its members across Europe.
